

CLAIMS

What is claimed is:

1. A method for greatly reducing the number of shopping 5 errands required by children caretakers such as parents wherein children are being transported to and from a child activity center such as a daycare center comprising the steps of:

a. placing a product storage kiosk unit that includes at least one stand alone vertical module in a child 10 activity center such as a daycare center;

b. placing child specialty products within the module for sale to visits to the child activity center; and

c. selling child specialty products to visits of the daycare center to eliminate additional shopping trips for 15 child specialty products..

2. A system for providing child specialty products at a child activity center for sale to child caregivers who transport children back and forth to the child activity center comprising:

20 a first stand alone product storage unit;

a plurality of glass doors mounted on said vertical storage unit module;

a plurality of locks each of which can lock a different door of the storage doors;

child indicia mounted on said storage unit for providing an aesthetic appearance for a child activity center; and a child activity center such as a daycare center 5 including a hallway for receiving said kiosk.

3. A method as in claim 1, including the step of: providing a drive through store selling child specialty products having a child pleasing aesthetic exterior appearance.